Example, not a client bank

Question-bank sample (24 de-identified questions)

A de-identified 24-question example showing how a question bank is structured: eight questions for each of three buyer intents, each marked as fixed, held-out or fact-check. It contains no client data; part numbers and brands are placeholders.

How to read this sample

- A production panel has 24 fixed questions per market per week. This sample compresses all three types into 24 rows only to show structure and mix (16 fixed, 4 held-out, 4 fact-check).
- Held-out questions are sampled only at baseline and re-verification and do not run weekly. Answers to fact-check questions are confirmed by the client in advance.
- Square brackets are placeholders, such as [OE part number] and [Company]. A real bank fills in the client-approved category, part numbers and market.
- Questions come from de-identified inquiries, search queries and peer catalogs. Actual frequency ranking waits for client data.
